

After teaching for 18 years in Jerusalem Israel, including at Hebrew University, we returned a few years ago to my native San Diego. Literature is Life, and I look forward to sharing it with our students, as we also prepare them for the practical demands of English in our future studies and careers. I love spending time with my family and community on Shabbat, and making use of the beautiful nature we are so lucky to have here in California, at the beach, or in the mountains and desert. I literally traveled around the world after college and have lived abroad almost half my life, I am very happy to be settled down now.
